

Turkey Decides To Surrender Insult To The United States

Istanbul.—The Turkish government brought Samuel Insull ashore from his floating refuge and then decided to hand him over to the United States.

Meeting at Ankara, the cabinet voted to surrender the 74-year-old fugitive after an Istanbul court had decided his offences were not of a political or military nature.

Still fighting to the last ditch, the grey-haired former Chicago utilities magnate protested vehemently against the action.

Despite assertions by Insull and his lawyers that they would resist by force to the last, he was taken to a little chartered vessel, the Matia, Insull came quietly to the court.

Through a pouring rain, escorted by maritime police, Insull was landed at Galata bridge, which spans the Golden Horn.

In a tiny room near the famous Saint Sofia mosque a packed audience heard the third panel court proceed swiftly with its business, identifying the fugitive and then, in short order, announcing its decision. There were only two points for Insull to clear and his defence.

The three-judge tribunal decided the former utilities czar is an American citizen and that the crime of which he is accused "is a common crime," thereby disqualifying him from extradition as stated in the penal code—that the accused must not be Turkish and must not be charged with a political or military offence.

A delicate international situation had been created by the Insull problem. Turkey had found itself between the alternatives of offending the United States on the one hand and its recent friend, Greece, on the other.

The Greek minister to Turkey protested the detaining of the Greek steamer Matia as a possible violation of the straits agreement, as the Matia is considered free water.

When Insull came ashore it was the first time in 15 days he had left his little haven, following his departure from Piræus, Greece, in 1935 for a new sanctuary.

Few Century Votes Cast

Italy Shows Approval Of Mussolini In State Elections

Rome.—More than 10,000,000 voters registered their approval of Premier Benito Mussolini and his Fascist regime in the recent election. With all returns received, the contrary votes were recorded in the balloting on the 400 government-selected candidates—headed by 11 party men for the 29th century of deputies.

After adjournment it was announced the provinces and municipalities will be forced to carry on relief for the 10-day interval without Dominion assistance. It will mean the Dominion will not have authority to pay accounts and then will pick up until the extending bill passes the house and the senate. It was not believed there would be any curtailment of relief throughout the country.

The gentleman usher of the black rod, that legendary figure who acts as official messenger for the senate, broke up a spirited debate in the commons to announce Sir Lyman Duff, chief justice of Canada, was ready to give royal assent to bills in the real chamber. In a short debate, Liberals and Conservatives accused each other of delaying the unemployment bill.

Severs Another Chain

Irish Free State Departs From British Precedent

Dublin.—The Irish Free State claimed to have severed another of "Britain's ropes and chains" when W. W. McDowell, new Dublin States minister to Dublin, presented his credentials directly to President Eamon de Valera, instead of to the governor-general, the king's representative in Ireland.

Some time before the ceremony McDowell received instructions to present himself directly to the president from the Irish minister in foreign affairs (De Valera), and thus depart from a precedent which had never been broken before in modern Ireland. A mounted guard of honor escorted him and his arrival at the parliament buildings was hailed with a salute of 15 guns.

Empire Trade Improves

Ottawa Economic Agreement Helps Empire Trade In Some Quarters

London.—The financial times, reviewing the first complete year's operation of the Ottawa economic conference agreements, said there had been improvement in some quarters in exchange of empire goods. It noted particularly an improvement in trade between the United Kingdom, India and South Africa, but said there had been no marked expansion of empire trade as a whole.

The newspaper said, however, there was strong evidence to indicate good results may be expected from its agreements when general conditions improve. The tendency since the start of this year, it said, supports this view.

Admiral Byrd Prepared To Spend Eight Months In Little America

Little America, Antarctica.—Undaunted by the prospect of intense cold, darkness and the sudden storms of the long Antarctic "night," Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd prepared to spend eight months alone at a winter advance base 123 miles south of Little America.

His refuge until the end of October will be the tiny portable shack not much larger than required for elbow room. There he will study Antarctic meteorological phenomena by means of a battery of thermometers and smoke bombs.

Empire Sugar

Britain To Cut Duty To Assist The Canadian Output

London.—As a means of diverting Empire sugar production to Canada the British government will lessen its Empire preference, while at the same time increasing the benefits on a limited quota of Empire sugar.

The forthcoming budget, it was announced by the colonial offices, will reduce the preference but at the same time increase special benefits for Empire sugar producers exporting to Britain to a maximum of about 1.75 each hundredweight up to a limit of 360,000 tons.

Want To Be Heard

Edmonton.—Broadcasting of major debates in the Alberta legislature at the next session is being advocated by Andrew Simenon, Labor, Lethbridge, in a resolution placed on the legislature order paper.

Liberals accused the government of waiting too long to introduce the extending bill.

Hon. Wesley Gordon, minister of labor, struck back at the Liberals. He would like to see the legislation pass, and "if there is a hiatus it will result in a good deal of confusion." Other countries had passed more drastic unemployment legislation in a few hours and he did not see why the Canadian parliament should take so long.

The same hiatus resulted two years ago, responded Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, and the government announced it by retroactive legislation.

Liberals regained a running fight against the blanket powers of the relief bill, under which the government could take 75¢ steps to maintain "peace, order and good government," especially in granting guarantees to private corporations.

The labor minister announced that under the relief bill since 1931, loans and advances to provinces had totalled $52,700,000, and guarantees to banks for private corporations $106,500,000. Actual relief expenditures were $130,000,000. The bank would be required to pay private banks those concerning the wheat pool.

Cabinet Interviewed On Pensions Question

Veterans Officials Ask Federal Government To State Stand

Ottawa.—A positive declaration from the government as to its intention in regard to the security of pensioners and maintenance of basic rates of pension, including hospital allowances, was sought when Brigadier-General Alex Ross, C.M.G., of Victoria, B.C., Dominion Legion president, and other veterans officials, interviewed Prime Minister Bennett and his cabinet.

The veterans' leaders also urged a re-organization of the Canadian pension commission in such a manner as to "remove any suggestion that it is dominated by personnel of the old board of pension commissioners."

State pensions were not being asked, General Ross emphasized. "We are only asking that, as far as it is humanly possible, applicants for pension should be satisfied of the fairness of the commission adjudicating upon their claims, and that they have had a fair hearing."

Supreme Court To Decide

Will Give Ruling On Powers Of Tariff Board

Ottawa.—The supreme court of Canada will be asked by reference from the Dominion government, to decide the powers of the tariff board with respect to its authority to determine questions of law, whether the ratings of the board with respect to duty values are subject to the approval of the minister of national revenue, and whether certain duty valuations by the minister can be annulled by action of the tariff board.

This was announced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, who tabled an order-in-council authorizing the government to take this action.

Reduces Hours Of Work

Victoria.—Maximum hours of work are cut from 50 to 48 hours a week under the new "hours of work" bill given second reading in the British Columbia legislature. The measure also broadens the scope of regulations to include practically all industries and occupations. The former act was more restricted in its application.

Improved Showing

Report Of Canadian National Railways Indicates Upward Trend

Ottawa.—In spite of adverse conditions, the Canadian National Railways system made a slightly improved showing during 1933, as compared with the preceding year.

The annual report, tabled in the House of Commons by Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, indicates an improvement in the 1933 deficit of $1,103,118.

Railway operating revenues were $148,210,742, and expenses $147,212,569, leaving a net operating revenue of $9,998,183.

Fixed charges, interest on the funded debt held by the public, taxes and other debts, however, resulted in a cash deficit for the year of $8,993,398.

The report is the first under the new system with a board of trustees, headed by Chairman C. P. Fullerton. The sudden change in management was made to the new board, and transmitted by it to the minister for tabling in parliament.

While S. H. Humberford, president, declares depressed business conditions were in evidence, an improvement was felt during the latter half of 1933. This was not, however, sufficiently pronounced to counteract the deficit.

"The depth of the economic depression," he states, may be gauged by the fact that the gross revenue of the system in 1932 was $147,765,288 less than those of the year 1932. The operating expenses were $113,134,000 below the 1928 total."

Drastic Measures

To Put Teeth In International Wheat Pact

London.—A first report on a series of drastic measures to put teeth in the international wheat pact was completed by a committee of experts in preparation for a conference opening in Rome.

Report control measures, minimum price schemes, and methods of increasing consumption and nullifying the depressing effect of subsidies are features of the 4,000-word document. Their findings and suggestions will form the basis of debate during the coming party regarding the ways to insure benefits from a wheat agreement signed in London last year by representatives of 21 nations.

So thorough has been the study of all aspects of these measures that many of the delegates from a dozen countries who attended a week of intense deliberations in London, can be counted for more time on the grounds that a further investigation is necessary.

Seeding In Alberta

Lethbridge.—First wheat seeding in southern Alberta this spring was under way. The Coolidge and Allen farm at Tabor, Sask. was reported in good condition, though the weather is still rather cool for a general start in spring operations.

Wide Powers Will Be Enjoyed By The B. C. Government

Victoria.—Powers never before vested in the government of any Canadian province since confederation will be enjoyed by Premier T. D. Pattullo, of British Columbia, and his cabinet during the period between the present and the next session of the legislature.

The special Powers Act conferring this authority was received third reading in the legislature. Under it the government will have the power of the legislature over a wide range of matters, mostly of an economic nature.

The ultimate significance of the measure will be revealed as the government, during the coming months, attacks the problems of carrying out its program of "work and wages" and the extent to which it uses the powers which it has been given.

To charges of "dictatorship," Premier Pattullo had declared nothing that soot is in mind; that the government has no intention, for instance, of making large grants of Ottawa.—Imposition of a "currency dump" on New Zealand butter follows close on the heels of the lengthy debate two weeks ago in the House of Commons when the government was under fire for permitting the entry into Canada of a large consignment of butter from the Antipodean dominion. This had been landed at Halifax in 1929 for a while was held by the customs authorities who later released it for distribution in Montreal and Toronto as the demand warranted.

This inspired many parliamentarians to direct much criticism against the government, the declaration being made that at a time when Canadian farmers were finding it necessary to store their butter, there should not have been such importations allowed from New Zealand.

The order-in-council, made public recently, makes New Zealand butter subject to the operation of the same principle that applied when United Kingdom currency was at a discount. The order places the New Zealand pound on a par basis for purposes of levying duty, and collects as a currency dump the difference between par ($4.86) and the depreciated value of the pound.

Increased Employment

Greatest Improvement In Ontario, With Decline In Prairie Provinces

Ottawa.—An increase of almost 12,000 persons was shown in the number of employed on March 1 as compared with Feb. 1, according to a report issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics. Reports from 8,490 employers showed an increase from $48,095 on Feb. 1, to $61,044 on March 1.

The records of the last 13 years show the average change in employment between Feb. 1 and March 1 is a small increase, gains in seven of the provinces, and a loss in more than offsetting losses in the remaining six.

The trend of employment was upward in four of the five economic areas, only the prairie provinces showing a decline compared with Feb. 1; the greatest improvement was in Ontario.

Seeking Opinion Of Canadian Business Men

Chamber Of Commerce Announces Poll On Marketing Act

Montreal.—W. C. McLeod, chairman, secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, announced a poll of every board of trade and chamber of commerce in Canada would be held to determine what these bodies think of the Natural Products Marketing Act introduced in the House of Commons at Ottawa.

"The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is much interested in the bill," Mr. McLeod says, "and to the making of the government in business and we are watching to see if the government will be involved in commerce in the new bill."

Such things as drilling for natural oil and gas, putting men on relief on the land, encouragement of phosphate mining, and the dovetailing of provincial ordinances with Dominion legislation would be considered.

The fight against the R.R.A. has waged since it was introduced on March 18, G. G. McCrear (Lib., Burrard) and C. C. McCrear (Cons., Burrard) have been opposed to the wealth Federation members taking up the cudgels of attack. The vote showed every Liberal member except Mr. McCrear voting for the bill.

Clashes giving the government power over the disposition of natural resources, and civil rights, and power to inflict penalties for infractions of ordinances under the act bore the brunt of the "dictatorship" charge.

"Umbrella" Plane Tested

New Type Machine Flies 135 Miles An Hour

A new type "umbrella" airplane, which takes off with a 100-foot run and lands safely inside a 25-foot circle, has been given successful tests at Curtiss-Wright airport, Chicago.

The plane has a 12-foot circular "spring" instead of standard monoplane construction, with ailerons encircling almost half the circumference of the "umbrella." It is powered with a 125-horsepower motor.

In repeated tests the plane dropped to earth at a 60-degree angle at a speed slower than a parachute. It gained speed on the take-off at 700 feet a minute and reached an air-speed of 135 miles an hour.

Dwight Morrow, the test pilot, said the plane was more stable than standard types of craft and that a novice could be taught to fly it in a few hours.

Sailors' Clothing Hung To Dry Gave Coastguards Hard Time

Sailors must not hang their clothing on a ship's rigging to dry, so warns the coast guard at Ocean City, Maryland. Through the mist and fog recently a patrol boat saw four ships flying "distress" signals. Coast guardsmen launched into the heavy sea and rowed seven hours. Pulling up beside the "Annie Mae" out of Philadelphia, the patrol found the "distress" signals were plain shirts and pants which had been hung up on the rigging to dry.

Little Journeys in Science

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Nitrogen is an indispensable element, because all life depends upon it. While this is true it is a fact that neither animals nor plants with the exception of certain families of bacteria, possess the power of taking nitrogen directly from the air, which it comprises about four fifths by volume.

Nitrogen occurs in the air uncombined with the gases and in enormous quantity. It has been calculated that there are 20,000,000 tons of nitrogen above each square inch of the earth's surface. Since there are 640 acres in a square mile, a farmer owning this amount of land may be claimed to nitrogen enough to supply necessary nitrogen compounds to the whole world for fifty years at the present rate of consumption.

The great abundance of free nitrogen is due to its inertness under normal conditions. It is not, therefore, the fact that many nitrogen compounds are more or less unstable, and therefore tend to give up nitrogen to the air.

Man can build a single cell without nitrogen. The marvelous properties of all living matter depend in part upon the presence of fair element. Furthermore, it is an essential constituent of all commercial explosives such as gunpowder, dynamite, etc. (N, C, H) as well as of valuable fertilizers such as Chile saltpetre and ammonium sulphate, also of nitric acid, ammonia, certain useful drugs and medicines, and dyes of lovely colors. In spite of its apparent inertness and lack of odor, color or taste, all life would sicken and die if deprived of nitrogen or nitrogenous compounds. Bountiful harvests and vigorous growth of grass, flowers, and trees are obtained only when the soil contains proper nitrogenous fertilizers. For industrial uses, nitrogen is obtained from liquid air. The chief use of nitrogen in industry is in the preparation of ammonia, which is the first step in the manufacture of important fertilizers. Some electric light bulbs are filled with the gas. Because of its inertness it does not attack the white-hot filament.

Protecting Plants in Early Spring From Danger Caused By Frost

It is the fluctuating temperature of March and April which plays havoc among strawberries, fall wheat and clovers, not to mention perennial flowers, roses, shrubs and climbers. At no time when the sun is very strong the frost leaves the top of the soil and even the sap may start from the roots of shrubs and vines. But this is only temporary spring and at night when sun and temperature sink in union the frost returns and the top crust of the soil is heaved, breaking off tiny roots. Or maybe the thaw at noon has resulted in pools of water in the crown of perennial plants like Hollyhocks. These little spoils freeze at night and in doing so split the tap root. Still again damage may be caused by cold, trying winds. To guard against this sort of thing the gardener is advised to sprinkle a light mulch of leaves, straw, manure or similar material over his plants or around the lower stems of tender shrubbery, climbers and rose bushes.

It is quite possible to produce good sized new potatoes by early this time of the year. It is the time the crop is most appropriate to the soil. Black a small planting just as soon as the ground works up nicely. To further make things simple, spread the seed potatoes out in some frost proof place where they will get as much sun as possible through the window. Soon, healthy stout sprouts will appear and if planted carefully, so as to avoid heaving, they will grow well. It is quite possible to produce good sized new potatoes by early this time of the year. In repaying a lawn already established it is most important to get the very best seed. There is a great range in price here just as in the case of the seed. Some of the best commercial grades are made up of blended mixtures and absolutely dependable on the proportion of the higher grade lines which go into the mixture. A good lawn grass mixture is composed of at least half a dozen grasses. Some of these are quick growers, which come along quickly the first year and protect the later starting, finer-stemmed, but really permanent grasses which will go to make up the lawn in the years to come. It is these permanent grasses which are the most expensive, but which once along speedily the mixture will not make a satisfactory showing after the second year. Before sowing get the soil raked level. Allow two to three square feet, going over the ground twice, once across and once lengthwise. Then rake lightly, one way only so as to be sure to cover the seed evenly. It is possible to finish the job with a heavy roller or pounder. When the grass is up two inches commence watering. It is very important that so that there will be no danger of pulling out the young plants.

Sweet peas, which are so popular to go in. For good results these must be planted just as soon as it is possible to get a space in the ground. Usually there are one or two days in early April when it is possible to work up the soil in the warmest part of the garden and this is the time and place for these flowers. They do best in a climate where the summer nights are inclined to be cool. They must have extra water during dry weather. It is advisable to set in a trench and support on bushes, strings or poultry netting. Dig the trench a foot deep and put in tines or four inches of well rotted leaves, or manure. On top of this put three inches of fine soil, using a very sharp spade and the same soil.

If all the snow that blanketed Port Arthur, Ontario, between Oct. 15, 1932, and Oct. 28, 1932, were packed into cubes of one foot square and placed end to end there would be a mile of snow across the world.

Statistics estimate the snowfall in Port Arthur during that period of 49 inches or nearly 4,000,000 tons.

Modern Noah Expects Flood To Sweep World In 1934

"Capt." William Lord Greenwood, modern Noah, is ready to take off in his ark when, according to his prophecy, the second deluge sweeps the world in 1934.

"Capt." Greenwood is master of Ark 2nd, a fantastic craft grounded on the beach of Most Port at Olympia, Wash. He declared himself having four years in which to repent. At the end of that period a tidal wave will sweep in from the Pacific and wipe out the world, leaving only himself and the repentant.

Scorers who predicted Ark 2nd would not even float, had to bear the scorn of "Capt." Greenwood when recent floods lifted the old bulk of the beach. These floods he said were just a warning of greater floods to come.

Schooling Takes Least Money

Amount Small Compared With Other Expenses In Raising Child

It costs no more to raise six children and give them an average schooling than to raise seven completely illiterate. More is spent on a child than sending it to school, twice as much is spent on nourishing it, and nearly three times as much on housing it. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has devoted to its formal education can scarcely be considered a very formidable fraction of the total sum involved in bringing up a child to the age of self support. It would no doubt seem smaller still if seen in comparison with the amount that it costs to earn the money to pay for the child and perhaps insignificant when considering the wider mental life that the child spends up to the individual.

These and other observations are contained in a report on "Expenditures for Schools as a Factor in the Cost of Raising the Canadian Child," which will be issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shortly.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money until she comes of age and is studying commercial art in the hope of finding an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Wehr, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter; Sylvia Todd, Peter's model; and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with imperfections. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the night, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted none of her work, send for her and tell her that they have a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. The critics were enthusiastic about her work, and Mr. Weeks offers her a salary of $5,000 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She tells Peter of her good fortune in securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave the Hoyt household. Avis Wehr rents a studio on the same floor as Peter, and invites him to have lunch there. He accepts reluctantly, but is favorably impressed with his visit.

CHAPTER XXXVII

"All that has nothing to do with your problem, Peter," Camilla charged the subject abruptly. "Right now, you need time to think, but more time and freedom from anxiety. I can take care of both of us now, and I am going to do it until you get established in your own work."

Peter rose hastily to his feet, and stood unseeing Camilla with his hands clasped.

"Not much, you're not!" he snarled with anger and disgust. His voice sounded cold, so that it chilled Camilla to the bone, at the same time his eyes blazed fire. She never would have believed that Peter—her gentle, adoring, amiable Peter—could be so angry with her. And over nothing at all. She was experiencing what every woman does sooner or later after marriage—the revelation of some fault or ignoble characteristic in the man she loves, and which she has not dreamed he possessed.

Her surprise at his reaction silenced her for a few moments. Peter stood and gazed silently out the window. Finally, she ventured, "But, Peter, won't you be reasonable? Is there any sense in your doing odd work to pay your expenses when you are so rushed for time on your important work, when I am just as well helped?"

He whirled around, face red, and answered slowly, as if he measured his words. "Was that in our contract? You ought to know—you drew it up!"

She attempted to laugh, as if this first quarrel must be a joke, and they were only acting. "Oh, there were so many clauses in that silly contract that it would take a lawyer to remember them."

"Now you think it was a silly contract, do you? Well, get this! When I agree to do a thing, I do it. I'm no quitter! I suppose you are even torry you married me, now. I don't blame you, and you can break the whole contract any time you want to."

Like all quarrels, every word aggravated new unreasonableness. In Peter's overwrought state of mind, his chagrin at his poverty, and his unrecognition of Camilla's reasoning was paralyzed.

Camilla gasped helplessly. "Why, Peter, please, don't talk like that. You must be ill. You are ill, you are working and worrying too much. You have to let me help you."

"Don't say that again!" he commanded angrily. "That shows what you think I am—a weakling. Just because you got started about me, you're laughing at me—or feeling sorry for me, and that's all the more for you. If you think I like it that people will be telling me how proud I should be of my wife, you're dead wrong. There's nothing in the world I despise and dread more than living on the income of a wife who is more successful than her husband. I won't do that, even if I never do any better than I am now."

He had to stop for breath. But even that, tired, did not anger Camilla. It only hurt her cruelly, caused little shivers of pain to tremble through her, radiating from her heart, where a great heavy hurt throbbled and ached.

"But you are doing splendidly, dear Peter. It is just that me of it takes more time to develop. You really are doing so much more than I am, and it will be worth much more in the end, too. But you can't starve while you wait for the results!"

"I won't starve. I never have. And don't offer me your clarity!"

"Why, Peter, she pleaded, 'I was not offering you anything. What I have, is yours. And if anything I have can help with your future, I am doing it just as much for myself as for you, don't you see? Can't I invest my money in our future?"

"No, I don't see it that way and never will. You refused to let me take care of you and now you expect me to depend on you."

"But that's different. If you had to take care of me, it would hurt your work. I can help you because of my work."

"Which is exactly the whole thing. You need not to realize me, but I do. Camilla sighed helplessly. Words were useless in Peter's present mood. She never had seen him like this. She didn't know what to say or do. Presently, she got up from her chair swiftly and went over to put her arms around him and rest against him like a hurt, bewildered child.

"All right, darling. Let's not talk about it any more. I'm sorry—I suggested anything but what you do to whatever makes you happy?"

"Happy?" he scoffed.

She drew back and looked up into his face quickly. His eyes wavered and turned aside without meeting hers, stubbornly. In her arms, she felt his body rigid, unyielding, and he seemed to try to draw away from her. Camilla's thoughts flooded desperately, but she could think nothing to say. She just dropped her head on his broad, linen-covered breast and tightened her arms around him. His arms hung loosely at his sides, as if he were powerless to move them.

Finally, she said softly, without meeting up at him, "Peter, don't you love me?"

He moved impatiently and drew away from her. "Of course. You know it. Do. That only makes it worse."

It was as if he had plunged a knife into her breast, and she now gave it a quick twist to increase her pain.

"Makes what worse?" she asked weakly.

"Why, if I didn't love you and had no pride—that is, if I hadn't the two greatest things in life—I would have married you long ago. I would have, who could make enough for both of us, as some fellows do."

"I think you are an absolute mountain out of a sand pile," her own resentment began to rise, "but I have told you I say no more about this. Forget it, and let's go out for dinner somewhere."

"What with? I can't buy dinner for two with fifty cents. I get paid now, and that doesn't help me today. Besides, I owe most of what is coming to me."

She would have said, bitterly, that they not just quarrelled over that very thing. "Well, come along. I have money," but she dared not venture that suggestion now. Or she might have proposed that they go back to her apartment and have a party. There was plenty of food in the little iceless refrigerator. But that would be like pouring hot oil on his wounds of false pride.

But was it false pride, she asked herself anxiously, and had to admit that it was not, to a certain extent. Peter was a man, and he had possessed such pride, even if he did exaggerate its maintenance under these particular circumstances.

Have Used For Centuries

Many Laws Relating To Women Are Very Generous

Women of the Isle of Man for centuries have had the right to vote and the Manx laws relating to women and children, especially to widows, are very generous. Mrs. Hugh Canmell, a native of the island, told that a gathering of women in Montreal. Women of the Isle have more privileges legally and probably are more nearly on an equality with men than in any other place in the world.

An annual ceremony which is perhaps the oldest in the history of representative government takes place on Manxmen's Day, July 8, on Tynwald Hill when the legislators gather to read to the assembled people the laws that have been made and ask if they may be promulgated. The scene along the flower-scented roads leading to Tynwald reminds one of a miniature Derby, said Mrs. Canmell.

YOUR PRAYERS

I shall not ever be alone again. However dear my road. May be my poor abode.

I shall not shrink in fear of solitude Nor dread the silent days. When winter will come storming, harsh and rude.

And snow will shroud all ways. For still how we wing your prayers each hour. They fold me round about. As tenderly as south winds woo a flower.

Your prayers shall narrow out. Infatigable, and yet as strong as steel. Your prayers have armed me well. Close, close about my life your love I feel.

That only prayers can tell. Motorist—How far is it to the next town? "Native—Well, it seems further than it is, but you'll find it here."

Total deposits of associate banks of Tokyo, Japan, have been breaking high records.

Little Hints For This Week

"Thou shalt be steadfast and shall not fear, because thou shalt forget thy misery, and remember it as waters that pass away." Job 11:15-16.

In the bitter waves of woe, Despair and tested about. By the silent winds that blow From the desolate shores of doubt.

When the anchors that faith has cast Are dragging in the gale, I am quietly looking back To the things that cannot fail. In Washington Gladden.

In the darkest hour through which a human soul can pass, whatever else is doubtful, this at least is certain. If there be no God and no future state, even then it is better to be generous than selfish, better to be true than false, better to be brave than to be a coward. Blessed beyond all earthly blessedness is the man who in the tempestuous darkness of his soul has dared to hold fast to the unchangeable landmarks of blessedness is he, who when all is cheerless within and without, has obstinately clung to moral good. Thrice blessed because his night shall pass into clear bright day.—F. W. Robertson.

New Regulations For Receiving Gold Bullion

Origin Must Be Readily Recognized

An effort to further discourage the melting down of gold coins which are legal tender in Canada is made by the Minister of Finance in the new regulations for the receipt of bullion at the royal mint, Ottawa. As future gold jewelry and dental scrap will not be permitted to be melted or otherwise treated in such a way as to prevent its origin being readily recognized. It is unlawful to melt down gold coins which are legal tender in Canada and this regulation will make it impossible for any person to benefit by breaking the law since the gold cannot be legally exported.

Needles and Pins

"The known is not always pleasing, but is less terrifying than the unknown." A needle broken off in the body causes fear that is almost terror in some cases because of the remarkable stories concerning the supposed wanderings of broken needles in the body.

The needle will move a little because it is usually partially or wholly embedded in muscle, and when the muscle contracts, the needle will move. There are only a few authentic cases in which the broken needle has wandered for any considerable distance in the body. Most of the stories that are told about needles in the body belong to the fairy tale book.

This type of accident results, not from the carelessness of the person, but from the carelessness of another person who is careless. Needles should not be left lying around; there should be a definite place for them, and they should all be in that place excepting the needle that is in use. The needle that is out of its case should be kept threaded, as this makes it less likely to be lost.

It is surprising what parts of the body may receive the jab from a lost or misplaced needle, and the needle sometimes breaks off. The person who walks barefooted or in his stocking-feet around the house displays a confidence in the needle-using members of the family, which will be dispelled when his foot comes down on what was a lost needle, but which he has found.

The needle which is stuck in the arm of a chair or in the wall-paper, or which is left in the mending, does not always stay put until it is wanted again. Hunting for the lost needle seems to be a favorite pastime with some women and an occasional diversion for most.

A needle will sometimes be left in a garment which is undergoing repairs, and in that event it may be broken off in the body of the person who puts on the garment. No matter how it happens, there is no cause for alarm, because there is little or no danger associated with the accident.

There are a few things not to do, and these include efforts at squeezing and such procedures with the vain hope of getting the piece of needle out. This only makes matters worse. It is as well to keep the finger or whatever part is injured, at rest; the less movement the better because all movement means muscular action which will, more than likely, drive the broken needle or pin deeper into the tissue, making it more difficult to reach later.

There are several ingenious ways of moving such fragments from the body, but none of them is so satisfactory as keeping the fragments out in the first place through reasonable care.

Most Especially Conducted

The Captain and the crew, the ship's Doctor, and more particularly the kindly, motherly sternness of the Canadian Pacific liner Montclair all shared the responsibility of personally conducting the recent trans-Atlantic journey of Mary Estella Barr, of Halifax. Mary Estella has six months of very active life behind her, and the best wishes of the Montclair's personnel for many happy years to come. The journey was necessary because Mary Estella is motherless, and her father, Peter Barr of Halifax, though unwilling to part with his baby daughter, yielded to the wishes of the parents in Leith, Scotland, to send the baby to them. Her grandparents met her at Glasgow.
